MANIFESTO

OF JUNGIAN PSYCHOLOGISTS AND ANALYSTS IN BRAZIL

We are Jungian psychologists and analysts from different parts of Brazil.

We work daily with the effects that the world produces on psychic life.
We listen to people who suffer not only because of what happens “within” them, but also because of what happens between them, around them and through them.

That is why we emphasize that there is no suffering that is entirely private,
only personal.

The way society organizes work, family, the economy, the city, time, relationships, possibilities, and, above all, the imagination of the future, shapes and directly influences the formation of your subjectivity, both in your relationship with yourself and with the social world.

Politics organizes the society in which we live and, therefore,
also produces subjectivity.

And that is why we do not believe in neutrality regarding the political choices that the Brazilian people will make this year.

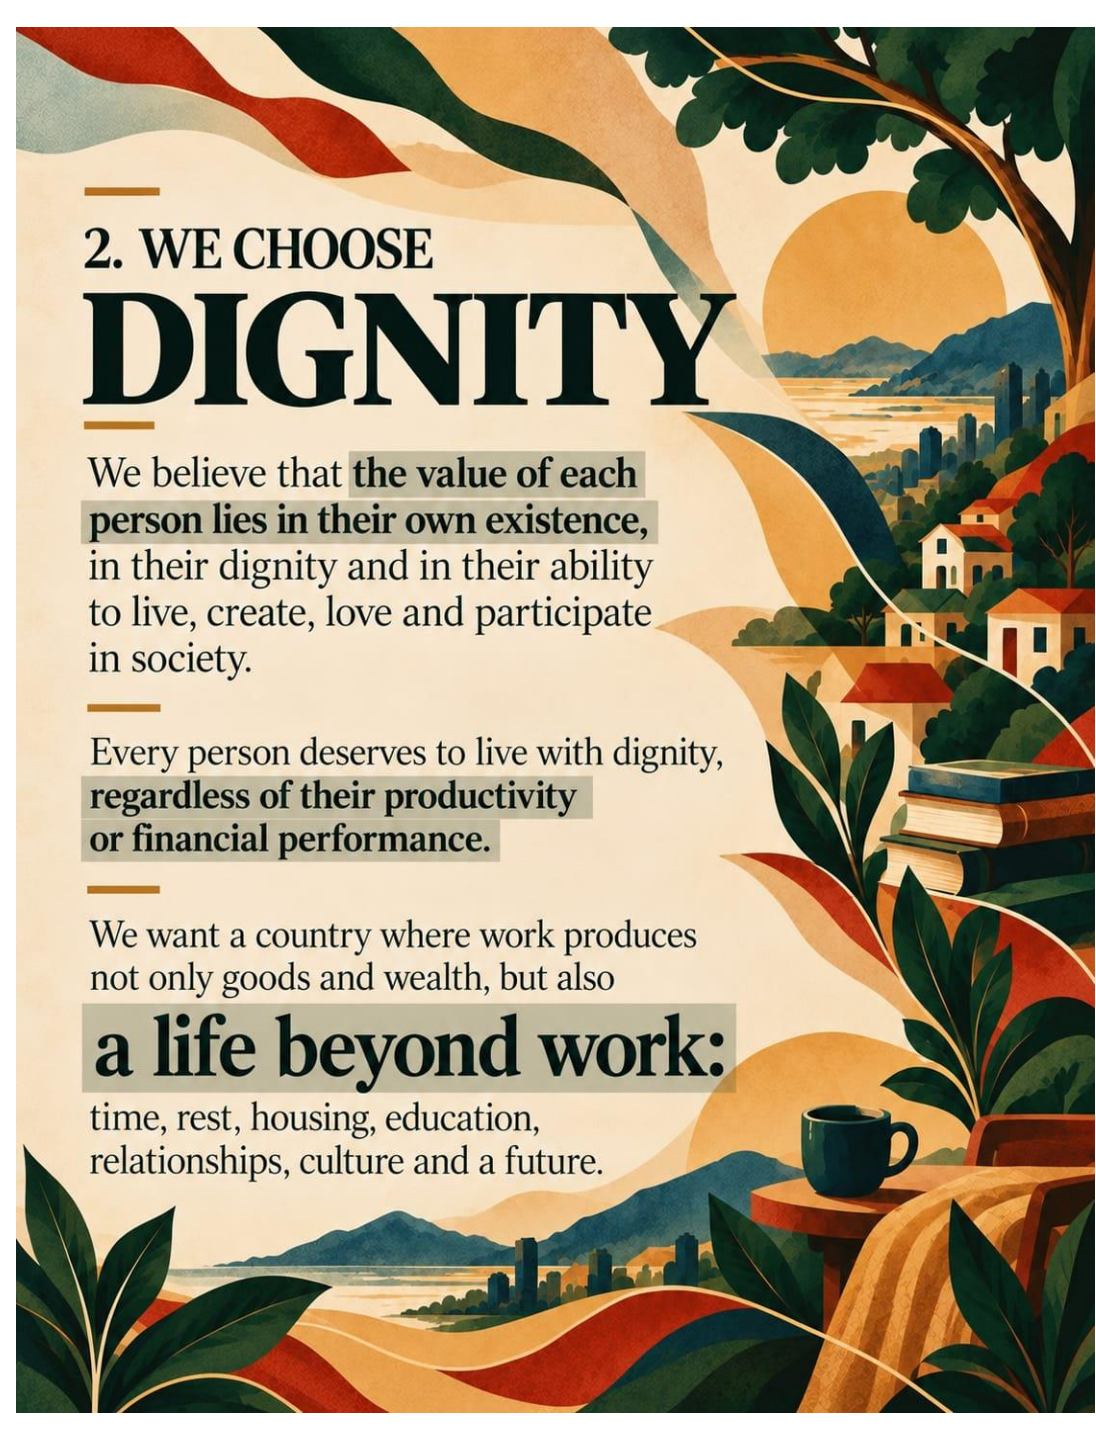

A stylized illustration on the right side of the page. It features two hands, one in red and one in blue, cupping a green plant with several leaves. The background consists of wavy, layered shapes in shades of orange, yellow, and green, suggesting a landscape or a sense of movement.

1. WE CHOOSE CARE

We believe that vulnerability and interdependence are fundamental human relationships, always have been.

Needing others does not make us less worthy. The need for care is part of the human condition. We want a society in which caring for people is not treated as waste, expense, privilege or favor, but as a collective responsibility.

2. WE CHOOSE DIGNITY

We believe that the value of each person lies in their own existence, in their dignity and in their ability to live, create, love and participate in society.

Every person deserves to live with dignity, regardless of their productivity or financial performance.

We want a country where work produces not only goods and wealth, but also a life beyond work:

time, rest, housing, education, relationships, culture and a future.

The illustration is a vibrant, stylized landscape. A person with dark curly hair, wearing a red shirt and dark pants, is walking away from the viewer on a winding, light-colored path. The path leads through rolling hills in shades of green, orange, and blue. In the distance, a city with various buildings is visible under a large, bright orange sun. The overall style is modern and artistic, with bold colors and clean lines.

3. WE CHOOSE FREEDOM

Freedom is not merely being free from someone's interference, as many believe.

Freedom is, above all, having concrete conditions to choose the course of one's own existence.

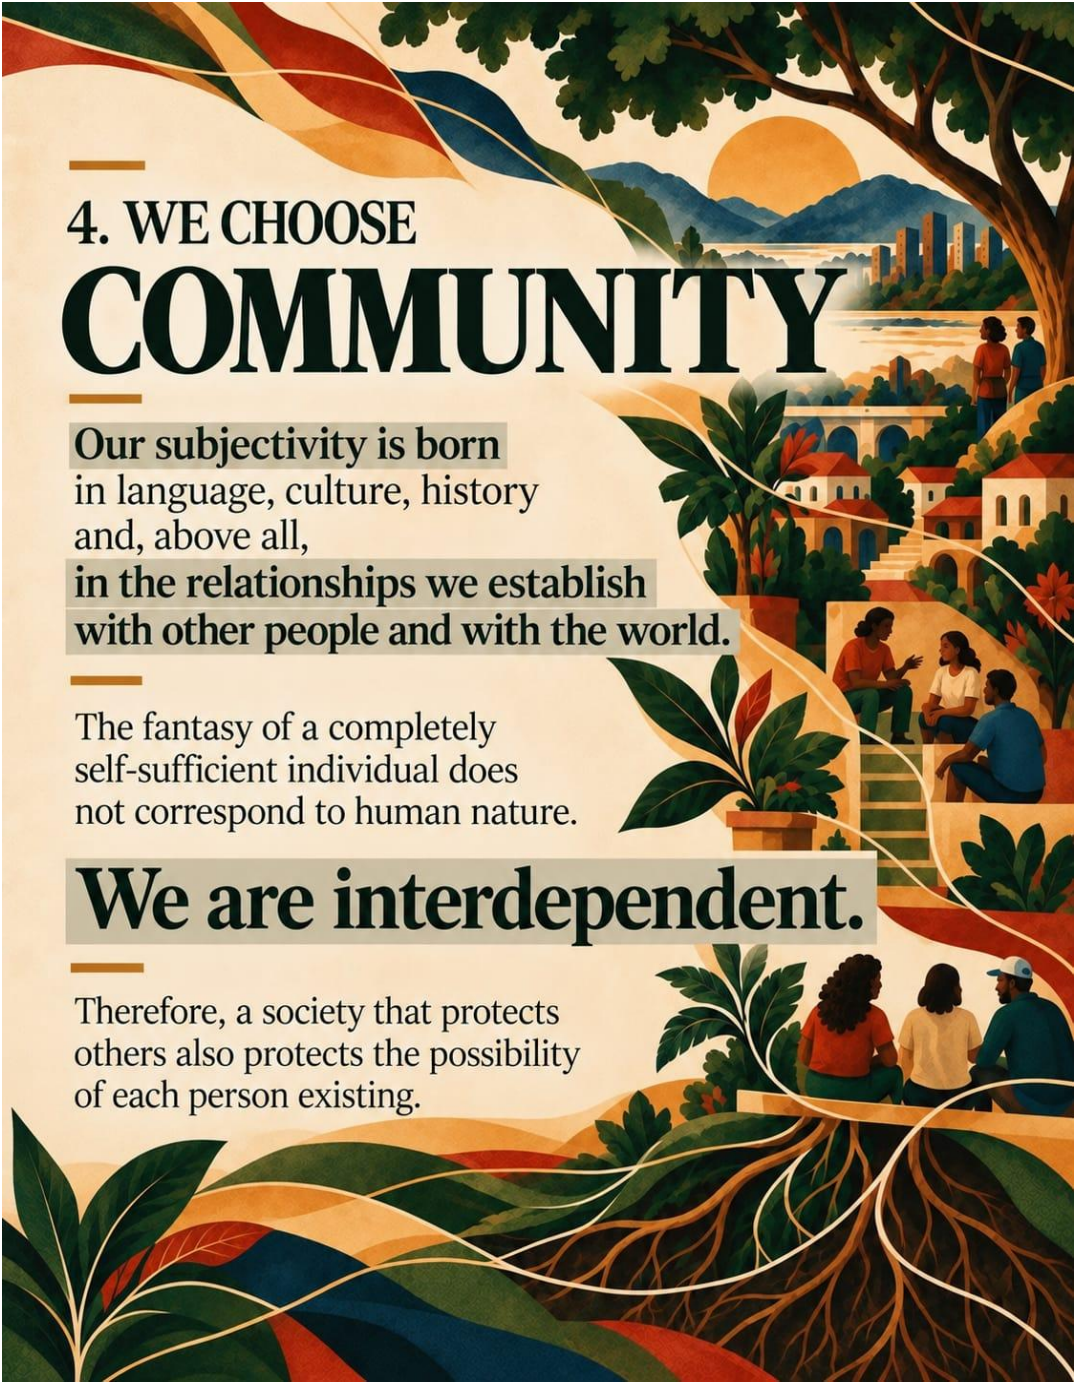

What kind of freedom exists when a person cannot afford their housing?

What kind of freedom exists when work occupies almost all of your time?

What kind of freedom exists when a child does not find opportunities to develop their potential?

What kind of freedom exists when fear organizes everyday life?

We want freedom for everyone, not only for those who can afford to buy it.

4. WE CHOOSE COMMUNITY

Our subjectivity is born in language, culture, history and, above all,
in the relationships we establish with other people and with the world.

The fantasy of a completely self-sufficient individual does not correspond to human nature.

We are interdependent.

Therefore, a society that protects others also protects the possibility of each person existing.

5. WE CHOOSE DEMOCRACY

We believe in democracy as a social organization where differences can exist without having to be transformed into enemies.

A democratic society requires the capacity to listen, recognition of our shared humanity, working through conflicts, and building agreements.

We do not want a politics founded on fear of the other, but on the capacity to imagine a shared future.

6. WE CHOOSE SOVEREIGNTY

Sovereignty is the agency of a people over their own destiny.

It is the power to decide over its resources, labor, territory, economy, science, culture and future, without these decisions being determined by external interests.

A psychology that recognizes the value of individual agency cannot be indifferent to collective sovereignty.

Because people need to be the subjects of their own lives, just as peoples need to be the subjects of their own destiny.

7. WE CHOOSE THE FUTURE

We want a Brazil capable of offering dignified futures
for everyone.

A country where a child can imagine a life with more opportunities than those their parents had.

Where young people can desire more than simply surviving.

Where work can coexist
with free time.

Where development does not mean environmental destruction.

Where older people can age with dignity.

WHY DO WE MAKE THIS MANIFESTO?

We make this manifesto with the awareness that it is not a candidate who will solve, alone, the deep conflicts in Brazil.

Nor do we believe that party politics should replace social participation.

We do this because we recognize that our political choices also express
a conception
of what it means to be human.

We understand that we are facing two political projects:

one that transforms vulnerability into individual blame

and another that recognizes collective responsibility;

one that organizes
society through fear

and another that is capable of producing hope;

one that uses
the State for its own benefit

and another that uses
public power to care for people and the country.

An illustration of a diverse group of people from behind, looking out over a city at sunset. The group includes a woman with curly hair, a man with a baseball cap, a woman with long dark hair, a woman with a red headwrap, a man with a backpack, an older woman with white hair, a woman with long dark hair, and a man with a hat. They are standing on a hill with stylized green and red foliage in the foreground. In the background, a city with a bridge is visible across a river, with mountains and a large orange sun in the sky. The scene is framed by stylized green and red foliage at the top and bottom.

For these values,

we declare our support for the candidacy of Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva
for the Presidency of the Republic.

We understand that the political project he represents aligns with the values we stand for:

care, dignity, freedom, community,
democracy, sovereignty and the future.
